Doing their Duty

Scores of Norway Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick. Backache and many kidney ills follow; Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's Kidney pills cure them all. Norway people endorse our claim.

Mrs. Julian Brown, living on Danforth St., Norway, Me., says: "I suffered from rheumatism for more than five years. I have been treated by physicians, and have taken a great many remedies in an effort to find relief. About three months ago I was reading the testimonial of a different person who had used Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to give them a trial. I went to Stone's drug store, procured a supply and took them according to directions. I am now using my sixth box and am steadily improving. Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me what no treatment or remedy has previously accomplished and I feel that it will only be a short time before I am entirely cured. I cannot recommend this excellent remedy too highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. For a Miller Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other. 35-36

That Labial Salute.

A Reply to the Dreamer. Most unjustly, my friend, you complain of the moon. Almost anyone stares at such mush-in-a- spoon. No wonder he peeped, the sound of your snore was pulling a plaster from somebody's back.

The little stars say—but we doubt it of course—that you gave her a kiss that would water a horse.

Basht! Well, say, I'd just like to know if you think that was basht, pray what are you now?

That labial echo, that made the moon peep, Shook the ground so the daisies all faltered in their sleep.

That absurd osculation, held action so strong, Drew the clouds from the face of the moon, which was wrong.

While your tale or that kiss would make one's hair curl, You omitted to say what became of the girl. Such a robust salute makes me almost afraid To think of the fate of that innocent maid.

Oh, say, did you see by the dawn's early light? If she'd remained consciousness, was she all right.

Or into oblivion had she been hurled? Say I was the one who shot that heard 'round the world? LOTUS EATER.

Written for the Advertiser. The Cave at Kezar Falls. Five lakes outspread in the sunlight, Reflecting on their glassy surface, Visions of loveliness rare.

From the lowest of the Kezars A brooklet hurries on, Now gleaming in the shadows, Now sparkling in the sun.

And its waters, rushing onward, Seeking the distant sea, Murmur a thro' a rocky chasm, And sing a song to me.

They said that a beautiful maiden Was imprisoned here in this cavern drear In the o're's angry mood.

And morning, noon and evening, Her plaintive voice was heard, Wild strains of woe and sadness, To the minds of many a hearer.

Who heard this mournful sound, It seemed that the prisoned waters Murmured in answer, Seeking a place of egress.

From the gloomy caverns there, To the joys of their former progress In the pleasant upper air.

But when Jupiter, Father of Nations, Heard a mighty thunderbolt Straight downward from the sky.

So it is that I hurried it, That it scarcely has left his hand, Ere it reached its destination In this far-off earthly land.

It clef the rocky fastness Where the prisoned maiden lay, And made for her a pathway Straight out to the light of day.

And the waters, rushing swiftly Thro' the chasm that Jove had riven, Sang ever merrily on their way, Seeking their distant haven.

But what was the fate of the maiden Released from her rocky prison In worlds afar from the earth-world? Is she destined forever to roam?

Creased on great Olympus, Found farthest of all the beings, Crowned queen of all the beings, Or is the noise of the brooklet, Singing without success, The voice of the beautiful maiden Giving thanks for her release?

In vain, O mortal, seek not This secret to revive. No answer comes from the brooklet Flowing down from the Kezar Falls. MYRA MOORE PATRICK.

Written for the Advertiser. Happiness. Happy thoughts make happy men, Cheerful words return again, Generous action, kindly deeds, Are Heaven's most prolific seed. THE DREAMER.

HIRAM.

Mail Carrier Has a Vacation. C. O. Lowell has been taking two weeks vacation and visited a number of places including Auburn, Lewiston, Cumberland Centre and Portland. Everything in the cities were looking their best, neat and clean, and the lawns with their beautiful display of flowers were a deep green mass with fragrance of a mid-day summer.

We visited the State fish hatchery near Turner. We found it a delightful spot and the superintendent was a genial and kind man. He showed us from the hatching pens up to the small ponds of large fish. He told us some of these trout weighed 16 pounds. There were a few of the Albino trout which were mottled white. He said these trout came from France. The feeding of the trout was going as it was about noon when we arrived there. The small trout were fed liver chopped very fine. The small fish were in long troughs which contained 2,000 to a trough. These they were feeding four large spoonfuls of liver twice a day. The pond trout up to three pounds were fed on heart. The very large trout, he said, were not fed anything as they were subject to disease. They were kept mostly for shows. He told us they had been losing quite a number of the larger trout but as they keep a watchman patrolling the grounds night and day there was no chance to lose them only by mink. He set some traps and was rewarded with five mink. Since then he has had no trouble losing them. There is a large pond fitted with seats and a large cold spring of water in the grove, which makes it a fine place for picnicking.

R. S. Moulton continues in very poor health. Bad colds are prevalent. Five at I. S. Lowell's have them.

C. H. Clemons and wife have been entertaining company from South Portland.

While working on the State road the seat which Walter Spring sat on broke, letting him fall under the wheels of a two-horse load of sand. One wheel passed over one foot, injuring him quite badly.

Principal Ridgely C. Clark of Fryeburg Academy has returned from a week's vacation at his home in Dexter.

Susan Walker read at the centennial celebration of Linnae Kimball Academy. Mrs. A. M. Abbott accompanied her in some of her selections.

Work on the academy buildings is progressing rapidly. It is expected that the carpenters and plumbers will complete their part of the work this week. The heating apparatus is now being repaired and a crew is at work on clearing up the grounds. All things seem to indicate a large school this fall.

Agnes Dresser is visiting her brother and his wife at the Arguonot. J. B. Dresser, their father, of Portland, a former proprietor of the Arguonot, has been at the house a few days. With two brothers, one from the west and one from Lewiston and their wives, he visited Lovell, his old home, where a sister, Mrs. John Kimball, resides.

A telegram was received in Fryeburg by Samuel Evans, informing him of the death of his cousin, William Souther, of Crawford, Nebraska. This is the last member of one of Fryeburg's oldest and best-known families. Mr. Souther was born in Fryeburg about 55 years ago, son of the late John and Kate Souther. Mr. Souther went West about 25 years ago and has been successful in business. He leaves a widow and four children in Crawford. Mrs. Geo. Barrows of Fryeburg was a sister to Mr. Barrows' father. The cause of his death was heart disease.

EAST OTISFIELD.

Picnic at Saturday Pond.

The morning of Aug. 20 dawned with the splendor of a beautiful day. The Women's Relief Corps of Oxford and the Golden Rule branch of the same Society together held their annual picnic in the grove by Saturday pond, known as the uncle Joseph Holden grove. The picnic was held on Saturday, Aug. 20, at the annual Sabbath School picnic in his grove.

The past few years this grove has become a very attractive place for family picnics as well as of many different societies. About nine o'clock the people began to arrive by single and double teams and hayracks filled with happy people and gaily decorated with flags.

Several autos also came to the picnic and when the crowd had all gathered over 300 people made the grove resound with merry laughter and hearty cheer. When the dinner hour came the tables which were made and loaned by D. L. Holden and over which floated Old Glory, in all its splendor, fairly groined beneath the heavy load of good things, which the sisters had prepared to appease hunger. The crowd being large it was necessary to reset the tables four times.

The Oxford band furnished excellent music during the day, the bugle call for dinner was listened to with interest and promptly responded to.

After dinner a full chorus of voices with Mrs. Lowe of Portland, as organist rendered several fine selections of songs. During this concert the band boys went up to D. L. Holden's, an old soldier who is confined to his bed by sickness, and played him a few familiar songs of the war. This was surely a sunshine deed and greatly appreciated by Mr. Holden. They then returned to the grove, playing often during the afternoon.

A great pleasure was offered the people by listening to songs by Ernest Stone and Miss Haggart of Waltham, Mass. and Ernest Greenleaf. Cyrus Chapin of the A. Roberts Post Oxford, gave very fitting remarks. In well chosen words he spoke of the object of the I. S. S. and of the amount of good the Golden Rule branch had done in its one year's life. Also of the object and work done by the Woman's Relief Corps for so many years assisting the G. A. R., Mr. Chapin was heartily applauded for his fitting remarks.

The hour for breaking camp came too soon and as the good byes were said our out town people remarked this is the ideal spot for a picnic. I shall want to come here every year.

Ernest Greenleaf did good work in building seats, tables, putting in the organ, swing, loaves and other helpful things to make the day a grand success. John Cleveland loaned the organ.

W. F. Smith is at work for James L. Holden of Oxford.

H. M. Stone returned from Andover on a fishing trip, Thursday.

HARRISON.

Lakeside Grange Field Day.

Lakeside Grange held its annual field day Saturday, Aug. 22d, at Floral Lawn Farm, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Briggs.

The weather in the morning seemed very unfavorable and doubtless hindered many from coming, but in spite of this, when the company were seated, under the trees on the lawn for their picnic dinner, it was found that more than a hundred had accepted the cordial invitation of Brother and Sister Briggs to be present.

The morning had been spent in an informal, social way. After dinner, worthy lecturer Ethel Thomas presented a fine literary program, consisting of a sermon by Harry Smith (text found in Mother Goose), recitations by Hazel Briggs, Winnie and Rupert Pembroke, songs by A. J. Chadbourne, Lucia Lakin and May Whitney, reading by Mrs. Lyman Shedd and the reading of the Grange Journal. This was said to be published as a rival to the Tri-town Bee, and contained many amusing hits.

In the afternoon, there was a ball game, between a picked nine of the Grange, who play only once a year, and the Harrison seconds. Needless to say, it was won by the small boys.

The Woodland Rebekahs mid-summer sale was a very successful affair. The sale was held in their banquet hall. On entering the door you beheld a handsome apron booth in deep pink and white at which Mrs. W. F. Smith, Mrs. J. T. Kneeland and Mrs. Nancy Tracy presided.

Opposite was a dainty booth in white and lemon, where all kinds of home cooked foods were sold. Mrs. Nellie Davis and Mrs. Nellie Fogg presided here. In the center of the hall was a large fancy work booth in blue and white, where Mrs. H. H. Caswell, Mrs. W. A. Southworth and Mrs. Joseph Pitts sold a large amount of fancy articles.

On the left was a pretty booth in red and white with a placard in front which said "Keep Sweet," where Mrs. Ada Flint and Josephine Ricker sold a large amount of home-made candies, candied orange peel and salted peanuts. At the corner of the hall Mrs. Ralph Burnham managed a fish pond which was decorated in emerald green and white, where many fishermen tried their luck and brought out a nutmeg grater, lead pencils, etc. In the opposite corner was a very handsome booth in pale blue and white, where beautiful hand-made handkerchiefs were sold by Mrs. C. W. Jackson, Mrs. Fred Greene and Alice Greene. Mrs. F. P. Bennett had a melody booth in apple green and white, where she sold odds and ends and did a flourishing business in her line.

About two hundred dollars were realized from the sale.

The minstrel show on the evening of the 18th conducted by Mrs. Ada D. Flint was one of the best ever given in town. Arthur Stanley was intercomedian. The chorus was composed of some of our finest local talent, 16 voices in all. The soloists were Lucia Lakin, May Pitts, May Whitney, Mary Hutchinson and Geo. Flint. The music was bright and catchy, the jokes good with many local hits.

Mrs. Lyman Shedd and Cassandra Pierce gave stump speeches which provoked much laughter. A crowded house gave hearty applause. $50.31 was taken at this entertainment which was considered unusually good. $14 were taken at the ball on the 19th. Dudley's orchestra furnished music at the sale a part of the time.

Geo. E. Tarbox was at home over Sunday.

Ray Whitney is visiting his father for a week.

A Democratic rally was held last Friday night in Grange hall.

Charles L. Lang from Concord, N. H. is visiting his parents for a few weeks.

Elizabeth Gray has returned to her work in the public library in Washington, D. C.

Rev. Dr. Kneeland from Boston preached at the Congregational church last Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Woodbury visited Mrs. A. F. Whitney, Friday, and is now at L. F. Briggs' home.

Nellie Pitts is taking a few days of much needed rest from her duties at the Harrison House.

Ray Jackson is back from California and working on Geo. Ross' blacksmith shop at present.

Sumner Davis, jr., was in town last week for several days visiting his sister, Mrs. Frank Fogg.

W. F. Smith went to Portland last Friday and bought a four-horse power Casco engine for his launch.

Mrs. W. H. Bailey went to Portland last Saturday to visit a few days at her son's, Percy Bailey's.

Herbert Fairclough of West Somerville, Mass., who has been stopping at Elms Inn, returned home last Sunday.

Will Davis and family are moving to Watford Flat. Mr. Davis drives the Watford stage and carries the mail.

Postmaster Lane spent last Wednesday and Thursday at Camp Connor, Long Island, attending the G. A. R. reunion.

Capt. Granville Fernald is stopping at Mrs. Alphonse Moulton's finishing up the history of Harrison, which Mr. Moulton began before his death.

Sweden was at George Flint's last Sunday. Mr. Moulton came in his new touring car, a Stanley steamer.

Dr. Clarence Nevers, wife and little son from Winthrop, Mass., and Benj. Flint from Conway, N. H., visited a couple of days last week at George Flint's.

For the past two Sundays the congregation at the Congregational church here heartily enjoyed the special music, solos being rendered by Lucia Lakin and May Whitney.

First base on balls, off Penfold 1, off Hoit 4, Hooper 2. Hit by pitched ball, Howard, Umpire, Adams. Scorer, Eason.

Hebron 10, Turner 9.

It took ten innings to decide who could claim themselves champions in playing off the tie between Hebron and Turner. The game was a game by four scores and each team was determined to win. The spectators were furnished a plenty of excitement from start to finish.

It was dark, wet weather and ground and ball were slippery and both teams made costly errors. Hebron excelled in batting and Turner in base running. Chase captured two long drives of Pike's to deep center that looked good for several bases, and gathered in four more hard drives without an error.

Pike played his usual fine game, both in the box and at bat. The wet weather was responsible for the large score and the game was much more interesting than the score would indicate or the summary will show in the following batting order and score:

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Cottage Burned.
Saturday afternoon the Bradhurst cottage at the lake was burned, the fire starting around the chimney in the attic. Ethel Bradbury and Eunice Davis went to the cottage about two o'clock and started a fire in the fireplace, then went back of the cottage to get more wood. In a few minutes they looked up and saw that the roof about the chimney was on fire. It burned rapidly and scarcely a thing was saved. The loss is about $800 with an insurance of $400. The cottage will be rebuilt. The foundation being put in this fall and the building put up in the spring.

Stealing from Gardens.
Moses P. Stiles had some nice large squashes growing in his garden, but one night thieves stole all the squashes and trampled the vines into the earth. F. H. Beck had some of the best sweet corn of the season near his garage. It was just right to pick, but when he went to gather it it was not for thieves had taken every ear. These thefts were in the night.

Sassafras Mead.

Mix gradually with two quarts of boiling water three pounds and a half of the best brown sugar, a pint and a half of good West India molasses and a quarter of a pound of tartaric acid. Stir it well, and when cool, strain it into a large jug or pan, then mix in a teaspoonful (not more) of essence of sassafras. Transfer into clean bottles (it will fill about half a dozen) cork it tightly, and keep in a cool place. It will be fit for use next day. Put into a box or boxes a quarter of a pound of carbonate of soda to use with it. To prepare a glass of sassafras mead for drinking, put a large tablespoonful of the mead into a tumbler half full of ice water, stir into it a half teaspoonful of the soda and it will immediately foam up to the top.

Sassafras mead will be found a cheap, wholesome and pleasant beverage for warm weather. The essence of sassafras, tartaric acid and carbonate of soda can of course all be obtained at the druggists.

Jack's Minstrel Show.

A Pleasing "out of the Ordinary" Evening. Entertainment Presented to a Full House.

Jack's Male Minstrels at the Norway Opera House, Thursday evening of last week, was greeted by a large audience. It is safe to say there was an attendance of 500. Several theatre parties from different sections attended, including a large party from Paris Hill.

The stage setting was a pleasing creation of stage craft. It was an Italian garden scene with Starns' orchestra partly concealed on a massive balcony. Some little distance to the front of the orchestra, just back of the semi-circle of performers perched on a full faced moon, sat a young darkey (Shirley McKay) comfortably enjoying a generous slice of water melon. House lighting plot was something new and looked particularly charming during H. Walter Browne's solo part.

The parts of the singers, jokers and jesters were well chosen and well given. The local hits came along thick and fast and pleased the audience as was shown by the applause given them. The shirt question troubled Charon and Carbin and cropped out at short intervals throughout the evening until Carbin got the shirt that he claimed Charon took, though it had shrunk to diminutive size, it nevertheless quieted the enthusiastic owner.

The songs were some of the best compositions of famous writers including "If you were Mine," "I'll be Your Lemmo," "If You'll be my Squeeze," "I Fear no Fox," "Astoria," and several other popular productions.

Mr. Oelrich, intendant, took care of that part of the program in his usual easy, pleasing manner as he always does on the stage in any part taken by him. Seated contented at his feet were Master Joe and Wiggin Merrill.

Walter Chandler's directory of Norway was a taking feature of the program amusing "take offs" being presented in poetical form. Chandler's balancing acts which were done without error were given the full hand. The finale of the program, the comedy gem, "A Happy Pair," by Mr. Oelrich and Mrs. Maud Mann contained bright, witty lines that amused the audience.

Summed up in a few words the whole evening's entertainment of mirth, laughter and song was a big success and one that gave the theatre goers good satisfaction.

Mr. Oelrich announced that though he had previously stated he expected to leave town soon and that this was to be his last show, he had changed his plan and hoped to present one or two more entertainments and believed the next would be "Way Down East" for the benefit of the Universalist church.

Norway Directory for 1908, "A Knock-logue."

The following is the directory of Norway as given by Walter Chandler at the minstrel show, Thursday evening.

1st Spasm.
Our Norway is a funny town,
Well filled with red hot sport,
The water turns to lager beer,
And lands men in Jones' court.

2nd Spasm.
The boys are not so much to blame
For their trip upon the sled,
What else could thirty players do
With the water pipe full of sand.

3rd Spasm.
Paris gets doped from Tannery brook
Well split with frogs and lizards,
George Morton kicks, and well he might
With shoe strings in his beard.

4th Spasm.
The Radcliffe play a pretty game
So make the men sing to go well,
There's Pike and "Or" with Bill Leith,
Chapman, Beare and Lowell.

5th Spasm.
Young, Price and Joseph Harrison
Come in for a lion's share,
When chin is needed, you will find
These boys are always there.

6th Spasm.
You cannot have a swinging sign,
You cannot tack a poster,
"Buy or borrow" says to walk,
When dead hunt up "Free!" Bolster.

7th Spasm.
Drink Never's "Big" as Bill Horne's best,
Try Beck for your sick auto,
Call Dennis Pike for Real Estate,
Let Merrill take your photo.

8th Spasm.
Smiley or Prince will use you white,
Even at a "Blue Tag Sale,"
Buy a coat that's out of date,
Have Nash sew on a tail.

9th Spasm.
F. E. Tower can sing a song
Or fix a Radcliffe shoe,
Harry Jones will gas you on
And drive away the blue.

10th Spasm.
Otto Schnerer sells rattan chairs,
Harry Lane cuts our coats,
Elbridge Walker gets minnow bait,
While Charles Fride deals in shoats.

11th Spasm.
"Doc" Staples and "Doc" Clifford
Will pull an aching tooth,
Or tell you how to shoot.
Owen Brooks will sell you beef,
Cook must scrape your face,
Foster and Noyes might fit your form,
Favor has a good suit case.

12th Spasm.
Our big steam roller does great work,
The new armory is a peach,
That X. M. O. is a gem,
Went sailing out of reach.

13th Spasm.
The Water Board once delivered goods,
Not extra fine—but very tough,
Sampson's trout closed up the pipe,
The System is a Let.

14th Spasm.
John Woodman is a fisherman
Who tries all kinds of bait,
Stub Rows does not care for trout,
And kicks against his fate.

15th Spasm.
George Curtis handles wet express,
Only does his duty,
The Shoe Shop does "Bijon" and Yanking "Tutti Frutti."

16th Spasm.
Frank Kimball is a music man
Who works upon his nerve,
"George Howe, you can tell a hen
From any other bird."

17th Spasm.
Sim Harriman keeps open,
Morning, noon and night,
Verne Rich peddles water,
The scariest thing in sight.

18th Spasm.
Vivian Hills can fix your watch
If you have a month to stay,
Doc Farmer calls upon the Lord,
"A little out of the way."

19th Spasm.
Sweet and Smith both carry shoes,
So on each other frowning,
You'd better close your doors, my friends,
And give in to George Downing.

20th Spasm.
Jack Oelrich can surely make a sign,
Or change with paint—your face,
He has this show, but it takes "Ough,"
So we're glad you're in this place.

21st Spasm.
O. Norway, you are really it,
For "base ball," "high ball," "no water at all,"
Is checked on the brimstone stair.

Thin summer dresses that have become flimsy and wrinkled but not soiled enough to be washed can be made to look fresh and new by sponging on the wrong side with weak gum arabic water and pressing as fast as dampened, and if a little gum arabic is added to the starch for very thin muslins they will not only look better but will retain their stiffness longer.

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N. C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. I leave town and I had never seen a physician without help. No tongue could tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I read it, and was truly amazed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

The Checkrein.

We can make all things injurious not used in the right way, and for this reason many have the abuse that has been apparent from the use of the checkrein on this same have concluded that it was a torture to the horse, when it was in those cases and have concluded that it should be cast away.

My conviction in favor of the use of the checkrein on the work horse came from watching a man who never used any. He never had a checkrein on any of his harness, and from just this experience I became more and more in favor of the checkrein. He also has since gone to using the check, and with a better result.

This man always had long shoulders on his horses, and I am convinced that working without the check was a great factor in it. I also notice that since he is using them he is not in trouble half as much as before, and this is very easy to reason out. If we place the horse without a checkrein he will naturally be putting his head down and nibbling at the weeds and especially the grass on the turn. Now do not say that if you feed him enough he will not do this, for this makes little difference. It is natural for the horse to be grazing. In the first place, this eating all the time is not good for the horse any more than it is good for the man. We should eat regularly and give the stomach a rest.

But this is not the main point. The horse that is ever putting his head to the ground in working will cause the greater part of the draft to come on the lower part of the shoulder, where it should press evenly all along, and this causes the collar to rub and you have a sore at those places. You may be as able to work without having a sore, but you are more apt to. In working a horse the collar should fit and press over the whole surface of the shoulder. If this constant shifting of the collar does not cause sore shoulders, I do not know what would. For this reason I use the checkrein to keep the horse's head on the natural level.

Do not go to extremes and check the horse so high that you can see his eyes when driving, and not so low that he will be grazing, but check for the natural level, which is higher on some horses than on others. There are some horses that cannot comfortably hold their head any higher than the level of their shoulders. Study this in your horses before you set any particular notch in their checkrein.

The checkrein has also an important place in helping control a horse. Do not throw away any part of the harness that is useful. Do not get the fashion of trying to drive with as little harness as possible. Be humane to the horse and use the checkrein as it should be used, and it will be a help to the horse, but when used in the wrong way it is a torture—Turf, Farm and Home.

The freight steamboat Columbia, owned and operated by Lewis P. Crockett, chairman of the board of selectmen at Naples, proprietor of the Crockett house and lumber manufacturer, while coming down the Songo river ran into a submerged stump and sank almost immediately, the crew of six men having barely time to escape to the shore with a dry skin. The boat was loaded with cord wood and potatoes and the cargo was recovered with great difficulty. The steamer lay on the bottom of the river for three days with nothing but the smokestack appearing above the water. It has been raised and brought back to Naples.

A New, Old Subject.

Potatoes From Seed.
The seed balls should be gathered early in the fall, laid in the sun a few days and then squeezed out into the water. The seeds will soon rise to the top when they have to be skinned off and dried thoroughly in the sun, or placed on paper or cloth to dry. After being in a warm, dry room for about 48 hours, the seeds are to be put in paper bags to keep until wanted. Early in the spring they may be sown in rows in a hotbed, or later in the open ground. When two or three weeks old the seedlings have to be picked out singly and placed in carefully prepared hills, which should be two feet apart in rows three feet apart. A small numbered stake has to be put in each hill, and during the growing season detailed notes should be taken concerning the habit, strength, time of ripening, yield, and general appearance of each plant. This record must be continued for five years before one can definitely ascertain the real value of a variety, as many of those which appear promising at first run out entirely, and sometimes those which one is tempted to discard the first few years may grow out best varieties. At digging time select only a few of the largest and best formed tubers of each kind, placing them in carefully marked boxes, each kind by itself, and in planting use only the largest spuds for seed. At the end of the fifth year if good culture has been given, probably one or more varieties out of a hundred seedlings will be found that will pay for all the labor and care given them. It is a slow process and for the common farmer not worth while.

Hints For Growing Chickens.
After chickens, do not feed them for twenty-four hours at least. The yolk of the egg in the chicken's abdomen supplies nourishment for this length of time. To force the chicken to eat may mean serious bowel trouble.

Give plenty of fresh water. The first feed should be given at short intervals—every two hours—with fresh water. Millet is a fine feed for young chickens. At first scatter it on a newspaper, so they will have no trouble in finding it. In a few days it can be scattered in clover chaff, and the chickens will enjoy scratching for it. Give millet until the chickens are large enough to eat wheat. Thrashing screenings, such as weed seed, cheat and small cracked grain will be a desirable food for them. Never feed sloppy food.

Keep plenty of dry, coarse sand in the scratching or exercising pen.

Instead of beef scraps curdled milk may be fed. Scald the milk, and the curd and whey will separate. Drain it by hanging up in a muslin sack, and when it is sufficiently dry crumble it to chicks.

Above all, don't turn the young chickens out in the early morning dews. They will bedabble themselves and take the gaps or some bowel disease. Have good shelters for them on rainy days, and make the coops rat proof. Be careful also to see that the coops are spacious.

A Farm Hospital.
So many diseases affect stock don't you think it would be a good idea for the farmer to have a room or stall set apart as a hospital for such animals? Every dairy or farm should have a hospital for the use of animals when they are sick from whatever cause, that they may be kept apart from the rest of the herd. This in case of contagious disease may be the means of saving much trouble and money and the lives and good health of the other animals. It also adds to the comfort of the sick animal at the time of parturition for quietness and easy attention go a great way to ensure safety from all the accidents of this condition.

Some New Methods.

A recipe has been found for getting rid of agents and cankers, and how could one confer a greater blessing on mankind, or more especially on woman-kind. It seems that one day a certain young married woman went to the door of the stereotyped inquiry if the lady of the house was in. Now the young matron is one not easily phased and her wits are always with her. She looked blankly at the man a moment and then there came a flash of inspiration. She pointed to her lips and point to her ears. Again the man inquired in bland but louder tones, "Is the lady of the house in?" And again the lady of the house performed her pantomime, making mysterious signs with her fingers. Then the agent fairly shouted, "Lady, I want to sell you a brush." But he was answered only with more violent gesticulations. The man looked at her a moment then turned on his heel and walked away, exclaiming as he went, "Well, that's the first time a woman I ever saw that couldn't talk." Evidently he had had ex-per-i-ence.

This same young lady was some days later called to the door by a beggar who did the usual distressing tale of woe. The listener expressed the deepest sympathy in her countenance, apparently swallowing every word. Then with tears in her voice she made answer: "Oh, I'm so sorry for you. I would be awfully glad to help you, only I am so poor myself. But I'll tell you what. There is my neighbor next door, Mrs. K—. She has plenty of money, she knows she'll help you. You just call on her'll give you a dollar." The beggar departed but history saith not whether he got his dollar.

One good thing about a political campaign is that a fellow isn't compelled by law to smoke all the cigars handed out to him.

The little town of Taft, named in honor of the Republican presidential candidate, out in Montana, had a serious fire the other day which destroyed the hotel and two saloons, thus evidently wiping out the leading industries of the community. This would probably be a good field for Candidate Chaun of the Prohibition party to tackle.

Cement and Concrete Buildings

Much has been said about the cement buildings that are being constructed in Norway, and we have gotten one of the contractors who are building these buildings to tell our readers more about them. This is what he writes:

Portland Cement and Concrete is not the coming material but the material of the future. It is a moderate priced cottage or an elaborate residence, office building, factory or barn. Concrete is here to stay, and as soon as people know the facts it will take the place of wood and clay brick almost entirely. It is such a great industry and of such varied importance to all that I want to attempt to refer to only a few points to begin with, hoping it may awaken a keener interest to get at facts which able writers are contributing in magazines and trade papers and facts also supplied by government at Washington, as well as the most state laboratories and colleges, and especially on the stability of Portland cement concrete.

Before considering details of concrete making, whether in hollow blocks or solid walls, bridges or floors, let us first understand what Portland cement is, how it originated and how it is made, how it differs from natural cement, sometimes called Rosendale cement. Rosendale is called natural cement because it is mined and burnt with chemical preparation being it a fixed chemical analysis. This cement varies greatly and is used mostly for mortar for laying brick and cellar floors.

Portland cement is a chemical preparation and may be said to have a fixed standard by varying in minor ingredients in different factories owing to slight variation in material although near enough to the correct analysis for practical results. According to the writer's best knowledge Portland cement was first made in England and perfected by an eminent engineer in England about 60 years ago. He discovered that the mixture he had experimented with had great value as a building material, and made the remark that it would produce artificial stone equal to Portland stone which was quarried extensively in England at that time. Hence the name Portland is applied to all high grade cement manufactured for building purposes at the present time.

For many years, especially in England and Germany, took the lead in cement manufacturing until quite recently. Now the United States lead, having plenty of material and the best machinery for grinding and burning.

Reports for the year of 1901 show that there was the greatest amount of money invested in cement plants and machinery for molding concrete of any industry for that year. This gives some idea of the magnitude of the cement and concrete industry at home, while abroad, especially in Germany, cement building is quite common, especially where substantial structures are especially desired.

Portland cement, so called, has a certain fixed standard chemical analysis and guarded carefully at the factory by expert chemists.

The bulk of material used to make Portland cement is lime rock or the like and common clay. This rock is crushed in a mill for road building, after it is thoroughly dried then analyzed to determine the amount of clay required for the batch. After adding the clay or other material, which is done by machinery, the mixture is ready for burning and is run through a long rotary kiln. These kilns are about 100 feet long and 6 feet in diameter, having stationary burners at lower end where heat is generated to be carried along inside of the immense tube or kiln which is shaped like a soil pipe with hub fitting over end of furnace. The revolving of kiln carries the material along and empties same into storage pits. During the burning the rock and clay become what is called clinker and resembles common soft coal ashes.

Now the product is ready for recalcining and a still greater burning, similar to the first except in some mills the kilns are fitted with steel shot for tumbling to help pulverize the clinker as it gradually burns and works its way through the kiln.

At this time there are minor ingredients added to the mixture which vary from day to day and from place to place, according to raw material found in different places. The material is finally pulverized and put through very fine screens when it is put up in bags or barrels ready for shipment.

Such a plant is erected on such a large scale as to cost several millions of dollars and only where there is a large amount of material, enough to last quite a long time, at least 20 years. There are no hardfast rules for concrete making as it depends greatly on the curing and grade of sand and determined easily by those familiar with conditions, etc.

However the general mixture used with good results, is about three parts sand to one part cement with additional broken stone or screened gravel amounting in some cases to five parts, according to soil in same which should not exceed what can be filled with the 3 and 1 mixture.

For hollow block work no coarse gravel is used as in heavy solid walls because of hindrance to thorough setting which is very important especially for blocks with dry process.

Reasonably well made concrete is the most durable building material known, but through jealousy or lack of knowledge many people are heard to make remarks which are laughable and puts some critics in a class to be objects of pity, especially where a nation of home builders are to receive the benefits of better, safer and more artistic dwellings, including color to suit one's taste, and best of all at a price, if properly managed, to enable many to own a home that never could otherwise, or if desired the most costly and artistic mansion conceivable can be erected.

Don't compare a concrete structure by a concrete sidewalk. The sidewalk has been torn and cracked by frost heaving, which would move a mountain had it been so placed as to get in the way of frost. For all buildings it is necessary to have a foundation below frost, then concrete stays in place and will carry a load of 75 tons per square foot.

To those who have made concrete buildings a study the matter of furring and lathing vs. water-proofing has been decided in favor of water-proofing for the fact that it is plain to see that it is better to keep cold out of a building and make it impervious than to try to keep heat in. To make a good, dry, warm concrete building water-proofing it is simply in how thorough the work is done, and for the same money water-proofing is best and avoids our fire traps, which too often proves to be a death trap. Of course this construction I refer to is the common hollow block style having about 20 cent.

air space, properly laid so as to form flues the entire height of building.

To the investor without particular knowledge of concrete it is quite a problem to decide whether such a building is desirable or not. As previously stated, scientific information is at hand for the asking at principal seats of government and schools, but let us ask ourselves if it is not proven beyond a doubt that concrete is substantial through the fact that not only immense structures in large cities are built entirely of it or else resting on it as a foundation. Instead of a few hundred dollars' worth, as in a house, several millions of dollars' worth in the big modern concrete office buildings which are being built under direction of our best engineers and invested in by shrewdest capitalists in the world.

It seems to me that everybody should know the facts and not feel that they are in the dark regarding the matter of building of concrete, get all the benefit possible under present conditions and not let the next generation reap all the harvest which is in store for them and give us the laugh besides, for fire-traps for houses are certainly going out of date and 50 years hence they will be in a class with log cabins and old-fashioned hewn timber houses, simply because people are getting sick of fires and constant repairs, and because a modern concrete house with wood partitions costs no more than wood, while a strictly fireproof house only costs a little more.

Here I wish to come back a step to refer to the practicability of hollow concrete block houses and some of the faults, rather in most cases families of those who please to criticize, as for instance one has said during a severe storm water seemed to drive in so as to appear inside of the wall. Allowing this is true it is no cause for condemnation of the entire structure for an improperly fixed flash or poor joint in masonry might cause this fault, all of which can be easily remedied, and after all in most cases such defects are so slight that they are hardly worth mentioning. For practical purposes votes with faulty construction and not remedied the defect referred to would not make dampness enough to be detected had it not been seen, so it is really a matter of fancy more than fact.

How often most of us have known snow to blow into a house from some cause or other, but we would not condemn the whole structure, although possibly annoyed no material damage incurred, and I refer to it merely to illustrate how easy it is to make a big story out of small facts. However such defects are easily avoided in concrete structures and are insignificant compared with many greater problems concerning this particular method of building.

Of course concrete in shape of building blocks is comparatively new, hence it must overcome, like all other new things, a host of criticism but the facts will remain on the credit side and instead of adding to loss of life and property for us it will stand as a monument of progress and an effective barrier to devastating fires and wind.

The cost of concrete structures is somewhat misunderstood and many estimate that a fair sized house costs anywhere from a song to a thousand dollars. Such estimates are ridiculous and extremely so if a little figuring is done. If not familiar with such estimating a little common sense will suffice to at least get an approximate price.

In the first place the cellar and foundation have to be done and if anything a little better than for wood structures so there is no discount here. Doors, windows, inside finish, floors, plumbing and inside painting and papering, some of the casing, etc., cost more in a cement building owing to convenience for nailing, etc., so there is no discount here. Then your roof is another case where there is no discount and the sum total to make a house cost only a song is what you can save on wall, studding and cladding. With a little reason it is not hard to see that a concrete wall structure must cost at least as much as wood simply because your margin to save on is so small. If the concrete wall cost nothing such buildings would cost only a trifle less than many people talk of their buildings costing complete. Such estimates are criminally foolish for it influences some to their disadvantage and hinders progress along important lines.

However, the fact remains that hollow concrete construction is estimated throughout the country to cost ten per cent. more than wood. Only with expert ability and good favorable conditions has it ever been possible to build of it at a less expense than wood.

This means the first cost, and here is where concrete wins for cost of insurance is less, repairs much less and it lasts forever as far as any expert knowledge goes. It is warmer in winter and cooler in summer, has a more even temperature, hence healthier, and costs less to heat.

The concrete building trade must be a profitable one to engage in, but to make it so one must necessarily make it a study and equip himself with knowledge to overcome conditions readily and take advantage of some particular method of block making of which there are several good ones. The idea of buying a machine and saving on building your self without engaging in the business permanently is a certain of disappointment and must surely cost dear for your experience, which would not be of any value unless you intend to follow the business. If you do follow the business I think it will be a most interesting and reasonably profitable at the same time proving an advantage to your customers.

Respectfully, C. H. CRAIGUE.

OAKS CORNER.

Corn is ripening fast and the shop at Oaks Corner started running, Tuesday. George C. Jilison of Boston has been home helping to fit up the shop for canning.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Meserve and little daughter Avis spent Sunday in their home in Casco.

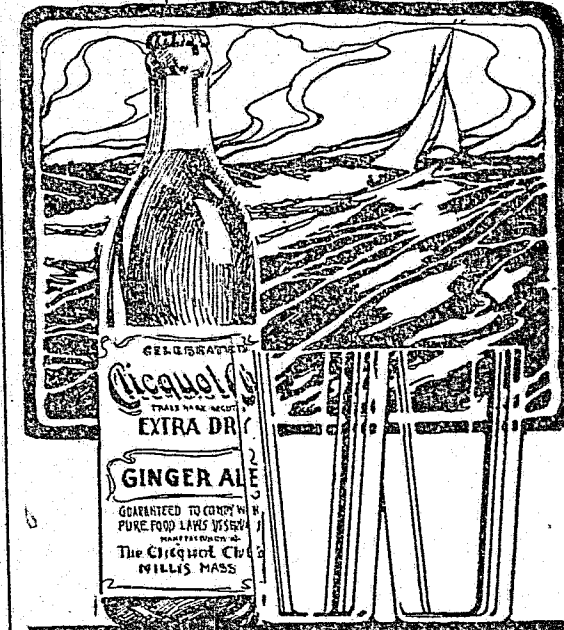

Mr. and Mrs. Winslow went to Webb's Mills, Monday night to be present at their niece's marriage, Millary Proctor to Daniel Spiller.

The pulpit in the church at Oaks Corner has been occupied by pastors from New Jersey for the past three Sundays. We regret they have left us.

They will cure me of DYSPEPSIA

Newburg Center, Me., 1903.
"I had been troubled with dyspepsia several years and could not seem to get any help for it. A friend of mine advised me to try your Bitters, which I did, and have found that they have helped me. I think in time they will cure me of dyspepsia." Yours truly,
Mrs. Rebecca Tribou.
The true "L. F." Atwood's Bitters have been used and recommended by the general public for nearly sixty years, 35c. at druggists.

NEURALGIA ACHES.

Relief in Ten Minutes by Simple Remedy.

"Anyone suffering the agonizing pains of neuralgia wants instant and immediate relief. Its quick action is one reason why Neuralgia Anodyne has made so many friends among neuralgia sufferers. The small dose internally to strengthen and quiet the whole nervous system, and at the same time, apply a little of the Anodyne externally to the affected part so that its soothing power will go through the pores of the skin to the throbbing nerves."

In ten minutes from the time you started to use the Anodyne you will find relief from pain and suffering. Neuralgia Anodyne has been used with such uniform success in curing neuralgia, headache, toothache, etc., that it is sold with the guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it.
A large bottle costs but 25c. Made by The Twitchell-Champlin Co., Portland, Me.
